Accessing Plymouth Legal Resources

Visit Primo, the search tool at the University of Plymouth, by clicking on the following link: https://primo.plymouth.ac.uk

To login, click on the Sign in command on the top right side, the one circled in the screenshot below.

You will be prompted to the Login options page. Select the University of Plymouth Login.
You will be then redirected to the login interface. Use the credentials provided by the Faculty Office at the beginning of your LLB programme.

Refer to the login details for the student John Smith, in the screenshot underneath, for the correct formatting of your credentials.

Type in your username (lowercased). This will be a one word including the first letter of your first name and your full surname.

The password, as shown in the screenshot above, will include the abbreviation of the date of birth (Dob) and your birth date, in the dd/mm/yyyy format, separated by a full stop.
In the next step, cancel the alert on the failed login process by clicking on the dismiss option. You can now access the databases by selecting the corresponding button, as indicated in the picture underneath.

Select the Databases button to access them

Select the corresponding initial to access the Lexis Library or the Westlaw database.
